1. Assesses relevant literature	Paper fails to give a coherent picture of the problem or how to address it, as discussed so far in existing literature. No original analysis.		Paper shows how existing literature defines and addresses the relevant issues. Moves beyond piece-by-piece approach to understanding it. Offers some original analysis.		Uses multidisciplinary resources in evaluating current approaches to the problem being discussed. They are understood thematically rather than article-by-article. Original analysis may be publishable.	Research paper
